

Disclaimer!

The financial shaman and Financial Shaman LLC does not guarantee that any tools you learn from this site or any related materials will bring more money into your life. I don't want you to have more money the same as I don't want an addict to have more of their drug. I want you to feel abundant and sane regardless of the amount of money you have or don't have.

When someone has been taught The Accumulation Theory of money since birth, it is all they know. Which means that a person indoctrinated this way will only do things surrounding money if it brings more money into their lives. If it does not, they will consider their energy wasted since they were attached to the outcome of more money.

Let me say this again very clearly. When you learn the tools and techniques I teach you must let go of more money showing up. The tools I teach are to make you feel better with regard to money. They are to remove stress so you can make financial decisions with clarity. The tools help you not panic when the bank account runs low. They help you make decisions that are more concerned with your personal growth and evolution instead of decisions to make more money.

If you believe that taking a Financial Shaman LLC course will somehow unlock the secrets of manifestation and you will be a millionaire overnight or someday very soon, then let me tell you that is not how this works. There are no get-rich-quick strategies here.

The Cooperation Theory I teach with regard to money in its simplest form is first you have to follow your highest excitement. When you do this negative programming or outdated beliefs will attempt to stop you. The tools I teach are to neutralize and update those beliefs. The tools that unbrainwash the part of you addicted to money. When you follow your excitement while removing any beliefs that show up that say you can't do what you dream then your heart's calling will show itself. After that, it still takes 10,000 hours of practice to master that calling. Once mastered, then and only then can you charge an abundance of money for your expression of mastery through either products or services aligned with that calling.

Do you honestly see anything “quick” about that theory? Why do I call it a theory anyway? Because until you actually do it, your mind will always label it a theory because you have never done it before. If I was teaching you to climb Mt. Everest I would tell you that there is a part of your mind that will constantly tell you “This is impossible” or “You can't do this” because you have no evidence in your logical mind of doing it in the past. Once you have summited the mountain, this part of your mind can never convince you that you can't do it because you have evidence that you did.

This part of your mind is no different with regards to climbing the mountain of unbrainwashing The Accumulation Theory and replacing it with The Cooperation Theory. Meaning it will always be a theory in your mind until you get paid like a master and claim victory over the game of money.

I want you to thoroughly study the free parts of the site until you feel called by your heart to purchase the courses and the course support. Study the free training on the site until you get strong indicators from your heart on which direction to follow. Only when your heart says it is time to invest in yourself by purchasing the courses should you buy. That way you do not blame me or the courses if they do not bring money flowing into your bank account overnight. There are no refunds for any reason so you better be sure.

You may have come to the site wanting more money. I started studying money manifestation and emotional intelligence years ago because I wanted the same thing. Except now I know why a lack of money is happening FOR you. I would rather you stay in a vacuum of money and learn what scarcity has to teach you instead of giving you ways to make more money to break the vacuum. That wouldn't teach you at all. An addict is only an addict when their drug of choice runs out. Then the real work of healing can begin.

When you feel abundant all the time, money will flow through your life more easily because you will not be so emotional when the natural ebbs and flows of money move through your life experience. That is what I want for you. Not more money, more ease with regard to money. Not more opportunities to make money, just the one that makes your heart soar. Ultimately I want you to make money doing what you love and if you stay and study my educational materials then you agree that is what you want as well.